

The Arabic Program at the Department of Languages, Literatures and Cultures invites you to an Evening of Arabic Music

LAYAALI

A CONCERT OF ARABIC MUSIC

LAYAALI is a Massachusetts-based group of talented musicians whose love and dedication to Arabic music have earned them wide acclaim from both ethnomusicologists and audiences at sold-out performances throughout the U.S. and internationally. The ensemble is committed to performing the traditional music of the Arab world and to preserving the rich legacy of Arabic culture. They performed at major U.S. colleges such as Harvard University, Yale University, and Williams College and at notable music halls (Club Passim, The Iron Horse, Whitney Center for the Arts) among other places.

Sponsored by: the Office of the Provost, College of Arts and Sciences Office of the Dean, the Office of Diversity, DLLC, CGAS, and Departments of Music, English, Communication, Art History and Women and Gender Studies.

April 20, 7:30pm at Mitchell Hall
