

The Ancient Greek and Roman Studies Faculty in the Department of Languages, Literatures and Cultures presents

WEREWOLVES, SPECTRES AND SKIN-CHANGERS: TALES OF TERROR FROM ANTIQUITY

October 30, 2017 | 7:00pm–8:00pm | Gore 205

FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC

Humankind has had a persistent strange attraction to things that go bump in the night; the Greeks and Romans were no exception.

Join Professor Tyson Sukava from the Department of Languages, Literatures and Cultures for an illustrated talk exploring the dark corners of ancient literature for haunted houses, unnatural transformations, and blood-curdling beasts to see what terrified audiences in classical antiquity.

